EUROVISION SONG CONTEST - MAIN STAGE

The Eurovision Song Contest Main Stage was a set build which included live playback of pre-rendered animations for each song on an 80'x24' LED screen. The stage and technical areas were all composite.

Bleacher seating was installed close to the stage build and there was provision for over 500 standing extras, allowing scope for a range of in-camera wide shots.

For the very widest shots of the auditorium 7,000 seats and the commentary boxes were added to the stage build in post.

Full animations and lighting sequences were devised for ten different acts, as well as a graphic identity for the show itself.

ICELANDIC SONG CONTEST

In contrast to the spectacle of the full Eurovision show, the Icelandic Song Contest is a more modest production, which was created on location at Conway Hall in London.

ICELAND - HUSAVIK

The Icelandic town of Husavik gave the film its heart. The town was dressed extensively before shooting, and was used for all of the home town exteriors. The interiors were achieved through mixture of UK locations and set builds.
