

To build the intense world of four war journalists' road trip with a scripted mandate of 857 miles from New York to D.C., we created landscapes for several Eastern U.S. states within the 30-mile filming zone of Atlanta. Our sets reflected the near future using only contemporary elements- no futuristic props, no visual callbacks to the first Civil War. The final sequence was a seamless rendering of a dozen disparate elements, and the film showed no cracks in this conceit.
